Dearest Dada:

Just a week from Thanksgiving!
I suppose that were we in college, we would be greatly excited. We certainly were last year, weren't we? Well, I am finally sending you a very poor snapshot of our house. It is so blurred that you cannot see the third floor at all!

I hope Ling Ling has sent you the little package I asked her to mail to you. And did you mail the packages to Dickey and Mellie. The whole box had to be sent off earlier than I thought: so I did not get Grandad's package in, and as he would have to pay duty on it were I to send it separately, I am therefore sending him some Chinese candy instead, as he doesn't have to pay duty on eatables.

My face hasn't gotten well yet: and Dad has not been as well as usual. So this is a discouraging letter for Xmas.

With love
Daughter

Dearest Dada: Just a week from Thanksgiving!
I suppose that were we in college, we would be greatly excited. We certainly were last year, weren't we? Well, I am finally sending you a very poor snapshot of our house. It is so blurred that you cannot see the third floor at all!

Hope Miss Ling has sent you the little package I asked her to mail to you. And did you mail the packages to Dickey and Nellie?
The whole box had to be sent off earlier than I thought: so I did not get Grandad's package in, and as he would have to pay duty on it were I to send it separately, I am therefore sending him some Chinese candy
instead, as he doesn't have to pay duty

on eatables.

My face hasn't gotten well yet; and Dad has not been as well as usual. So this is a discouraging letter for Xmas.

With love
Your untiring daughter.
